DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 11-13, 25-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Applicant's reference to "additive solutions" is inferentially included in the claim, and does not constitute a positive recitation.

Therefore, subsequent claims referring to the additives lack proper antecedent basis.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-4, 6, 14-16 18-22, 27-32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US 4,269,708 to Bonomini. Bonomini discloses a wearable dialysis module with capillary fibers that act as dialyzers along with a replaceable filter cartridge 31 that has sorbents that acts to absorb toxins from the dialysis liquid via lines 29 and 23 (see FIG 1, columns 2-5). Bonomini further discloses a blood inlet and outlet (unlabeled, see FIG 1, column 5). Bonomini fails to disclose multiple dialysers or multiple sorbent devices, however, mere duplication of the essential working parts of a device amounts to an obvious duplication of the disclosed prior art. See MPEP 2144.04.

5. Claims 5, 17, 20, 33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US 4,269,708 to Bonomimi in view of US 4,212,738 to Henne. Bonomini discloses the apparatus as claimed with the exception of a deformable casing to conform to the patient. Henne discloses a wearable dialysis system with a flexible casing that's easily conformed to the body of the patient (see column 2). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to add a flexible casing to the Bonomini portable dialysis system in order to conform to the body of the patient, as taught by Henne. Henne also discloses a multiple-sheet flat membrane dialyzer as one of the embodiments of his portable dialyzer. The multiple sheets increase the efficiency of the dialyzer (see columns 4, 6). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to use a multiple sheet membrane dialyzer in the portable dialysis system disclosed by Bonomini and Henne in order to increase efficiency.

6. Claim 8 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US 4,269,708 to Bonomimi in view of US 4,212,738 to Henne, further in view of US 4,897,189 to Greenwood. Bonomini and Henne disclose the apparatus as claimed with the exception of a means for injecting anticoagulant into the blood line. Greenwood discloses that his dialysis apparatus includes means for introducing anticoagulants such as heparin into the bloodstream like those well known in the art to prevent patient blood clots (see column 4). These means for injecting may include ports on the blood inlet or outlet. Rearranging parts of an invention requires only routine skill in the art. See MPEP 2144.04 Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to add a means for introducing anticoagulants such as heparin into the dialysis system disclosed by Bonomini in order to prevent patient blood clots.

7. Claim 23 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US 4,269,708 to Bonomimi in view of US 3,388,803 to Scott. Bonomini discloses the apparatus as claimed with the exception of a port on the diasylate tube. However, Scott discloses ports 27 and 28 in fluid communication with the diasylate. With regard to applicant's recitation drawn to the manner in which the additives are added, such recitation is drawn to the intended use of the device, which does not patentably distinguish from the prior art devices as claimed.

Conclusion

8. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure:

- a. US 6,117,122 Din et al
 - i. Portable dialysis unit
